

BACCALAUREATE IS DELIVERED BY REV. PAUL GLEICHMAN

"What Doth the Lord Require of Thee?" is Basis For His Message

BRISTOL H. S. SENIORS

Service Attended by Relatives and Friends of Graduates, Sunday

"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" This was the basis for the baccalaureate sermon delivered by the Rev. Paul Gleichman, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, before members of the 1949 class, Bristol high school, and their families and friends, yesterday. The service took place in the high school auditorium. Music was directed by Charles H. Quigley and G. Arthur Hornberger, special numbers being by the high school choir.

The Rev. Mr. Gleichman's sermon follows:

To the members of the graduating class, their families and friends; and to the members of the faculty and school board, I express my appreciation of the privilege of delivering the baccalaureate sermon. This is an occasion which I shall treasure in my ministry in Bristol.

To the graduates, I extend my sincere congratulations on this, the successful completion of your high school work. I hope that your commencement will become a threshold over which you cross into greater and even more significant attainment.

As the basis of our thinking together this afternoon I have chosen an Old Testament passage in the words of the prophet Micah, the sixth chapter, the eighth verse: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Across this text we may write the subject, "The Divine Requirement," for the question which the prophet raises and answers is essentially what God requires of you and me.

What shall I do? What shall I become? What requirements must I meet? What will be expected of me as I advance now beyond high school to larger responsibilities? These are questions to be faced and answered; questions which concern your future; and, questions which have to do with your higher education and your chosen career. These are important and, usually, difficult questions.

As you seek the answers to these questions, may I remind you today—as I am sure you have been reminded many times—there is one question on which all the others depend, the one question which must be answered first: "What doth the Lord require of thee?"

Many Pay Tribute To Memory of Dr. Krauskopf

DOYLESTOWN, June 6—More than 1,000 men and women from the Philadelphia and New York areas paid tribute yesterday to the memory of the late Dr. Joseph I. Krauskopf, founder of the National Agricultural College, at the annual Founders' Day exercises on the college campus near here.

James Work, president of the college, praised Dr. Krauskopf as "a man of great vision and great understanding."

"Too many educators today fail to see that higher education for only the privileged few is a thing of the past," he said.

"Dr. Krauskopf saw 50 years ago the function of education as a guide to action and to work."

Secretary of Internal Affairs William S. Livengood, Jr., paid tribute to small colleges such as the National Agricultural College as "the real backbone of the education system of Pennsylvania today."

"Here you catch the conscience of youth," Livengood declared. "This college stands as an enduring monument to a man with great mind, whose labors were not in vain," he said.

Stanley H. Himein, of Philadelphia, was chairman of the exercises. Leon Merz, chairman of the board of trustees, and William A. Reiter, trustee, also spoke.

LEGALIZED SECRECY

After a few minor differences in the thinking of the House and Senate have been ironed out, a bill broadening the powers of the Central Intelligence Agency will go to President Truman. It makes legally unaccountable to Congress several processes which, it is evident, members of both branches view with alarm.

As passed by a voice vote in the Senate, the bill offers special benefits to American spies and their informers, and permits the CIA to shroud in secrecy its financial practices and the names and activities of its agents. The agency is authorized to grant asylum annually to a maximum of 100 persons of foreign extraction whose services have been of value to this country in the past—or still are—and whose presence in their homelands places them in jeopardy.

Objections to the bill in the Senate took much the same tack as those currently being leveled against the conduct of the Atomic Energy Commission. Several Senators could not see their way clear to granting a "blank check" to the agency. Senator Johnson said he feared that granting blanket authority without full explanation would create a "military gestapo" within the government.

Senator Tydings, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, sought to mollify jittery Senators by promising that the list of aliens to be admitted will be subject to review.

DECADE IN AVIATION

Ten years is a long period in the history of aviation. The other day another anniversary could have been observed in the industry, but the date passed almost unnoticed. No ceremony marked the departure of a tenth anniversary mail flight from LaGuardia Field, New York.

Ten years ago, with all the pomp and ceremony that befit the occasion, the first trans-Atlantic mail flight left Port Washington, N. Y. In the plane which Capt. Arthur E. LaPorte guided off the field was 1,804 pounds of mail.

Twenty-six hours and 54 minutes later the last mailbags were unloaded in Lisbon, and another chapter in the history of American aeronautics was written.

Now the service has become routine. On the tenth anniversary crossing the mail was stowed away, quickly and efficiently, in a big liner, which also carried a complement of passengers, none of whom apparently was aware he was taking part in what could have been an anniversary event. Furthermore, the crossing was made in 14 hours.

What once was adventure in aviation is now just an everyday chore.

Taylor was unanimously re-elected president. After the election, the directors partook of an elaborate dinner served at the Silbert House.

At the annual meeting of the male members of the Methodist Church held last Friday evening, the following trustees were elected: For three years — Charles M. Foster, Doron Green and J. Wesley Wright; for two years — William Allen.

Clearly, something then will have to be done or down the drain we go. We will have arrived at that inevitable end of the road so long and futilely talked about. Obviously there are only three possible courses of action — spend vastly less; tax vastly more; or take the foot off the brakes.

DESPITE passage by the House of a new veterans' pension bill sentiment for economy appears rapidly growing. Recent newspaper polls in various states are highly significant. There is a real prospect that the five per cent cut all down the line will be made. But that would total only 1 1/2 billion, which is a long way from enough. The Hoover Commission has shown how 3 billion can be annually saved but the power of the Federal jobholders is such that few believe Congress has the guts to go full distance on that. Clearly, you can't raise $5,000,000,000 more in taxes without further depressing business and drying up revenue. Economy is the only answer. Faced with the stark prospect of a bankrupt nation, the only possible way to avert disaster is to push aside all new expensive experiments, completely cut out waste and recover our financial equilibrium. Upon that hinges not only our own salvation but the civilizations abroad which we are so desperately trying to prop.

IT is interesting to note that while Mr. Truman is alarmed over the prospect of a big deficit and still publicly anyhow — favors raising four billions in new taxes his zeal for economy is not great. So far he has opposed every cutting proposal. Nor has he really put his weight behind the Hoover proposals. It is even more interesting to note the attitude of the Americans for Democratic Action and their allied labor bosses. These denounce the President's partial retreat from the more fantastically expensive part of his program as a "betrayal" of the people. But they do more than that. Recently a Harvard economist, representing the ADA, appeared before a Senate committee urging the Administration's extremely costly compulsory health — insurance bill. He rather stunned some senators by declaring that governments cannot afford to economize and family heads who save instead of spending are "anti-social."

THERE is no available information as to how he behaves with his own money but certainly Senator Hubert Humphrey (sometimes called "Lippy"), who is head of the ADA, does not intend if he can help it that Uncle Sam shall go "anti-social" in this way. In five months he has personally sponsored bills totaling more than 23 billions of dollars of taxpayers' money. He is probably pretty proud of himself. Anyhow, it's a great thought that the more we spend and the more we owe and the deeper the deficit and the higher the debt the better off everybody is. Those who believe that the deeper the deficit and the higher the debt — may have a lot of fun — until the dam bursts.

And Micah answers, We should practice justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with our God. The simplicity of that answer is appealing. The breadth of that answer is satisfying, for it sums up our duty to both God and man, even as Jesus once expressed it: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God . . . and thy neighbor as thyself."

We are perfectly aware this day of the various churches and creeds and faiths represented in this congregation. In the words of Micah, however, we find a common point of meeting. Here is a statement of the "divine requirement" with which we all can agree: We should practice justice, and love mercy, and walk humbly with our God.

Too often "justice" is reserved for our courts of law. We are prone to think of justice in terms of crime and punishment, and legal processes where the law must take its course. But, there is a justice of human relationships which must operate not only in the court, but on the level of our everyday life, if we are to be fair and honest and decent in our treatment of our fellow-men.

The problem of race relations; the conflicts of labor and management; and the threats to religious liberty—these are areas where justice is simply clamoring for expression. You will not be spared these problems. You must be prepared, rather, to face these problems with a high sense of justice; to realize, in terms of the "golden rule," that "we should do unto others even as we would have them do unto us," and refrain from doing to others what we would not have them do to us. "Doing justly" means that I must move over, as it were, and make room in this world for my brother, even though he be of an-

CLOTHES may not make the man, but they certainly have plenty to do with making that woman in the looking glass appear attractive or otherwise. Some girls fancy that if they had plenty of money they could be ladies of fashion. It is not as simple as that. Smart attire is the result of a combination of gifts — good taste, an appreciation of beautiful colors and graceful lines, an understanding of suitability. One's type must be taken into consideration.

It will not do to have fixed ideas. The woman who scorns new offerings looks pretty much the same year after year. She is usually given to the practice of selecting drab colors that accent her drab personality. Let an expert dressmaker take her in hand and she'll lop off ten years, come out fresh and blooming.

Flattering Colors

Clothes should look as if they belong, as if there is a friendly bond between them and the wearer. This pleasant state of affairs will not other race or another creed. "Doing justly" means that I must think of my responsibilities as well as my rights, and eight hours of honest labor as well as eight hours of pay. Still, justice is not the highest law by which we live. Do justly—Yes! but love mercy and kindness! "Our earthly power doth then show likest God's when mercy seasons justice." One of the simplest and yet most eloquent phrases in the whole New Testament describes Jesus of Nazareth as one who "went about doing good." Though a more just man never walked the face of the earth, Jesus of Nazareth was kind, and compassionate, and merciful. The recent post-war years have not enough, as someone has said, that we be content with simply "going about." We must seek to go about "doing good," to deal gently and kindly with all men and, especially, with those weaker and less fortunate than ourselves. To justice we add mercy; and to these, humility: "walk humbly with thy God." Victor Hugo has said: "Certain thoughts are prayers. There are moments when, whatever be the attitude of the body, the soul is on its knees."

And what he has said of prayer is true, also, of humility. A pious remark or a bowed head are not signs, necessarily, of a humble walk with God. Humility is rather an attitude of mind and a freedom from pride and snobbery. It is, even as Kipling has written, the ability to walk with kings, yet not lose the common touch.

Astronomy has discovered an "expanding universe" has probed the skies with the telescope and found new mystery and wonder in the world above us. But, we do not boast of this knowledge. Instead, we are humbled by our ignorance, and, despite the passage of the centuries, still thrill to the words of the psalmist: "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers; the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained: what is man that Thou art mindful of him?"

Turn again to Jesus of Nazareth! Master, teacher, leader of men; ordained to greatness, given a name above every name. He, nevertheless, was truly humble, and on the night in which He was betrayed He stooped and washed the feet of His disciples. He was among men as One Who served; who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister; and, Who came preaching, in word and deed: "everyone that exist if the frock is too large or too snug, if it isn't one's age, if the colors are not flattering. The right frock will give a woman an confidence; the wrong one will bring on an inferiority feeling. That is why one should not make a hasty selection. The right accessories are just as important as the dress itself. A plain basic dress can be changed for each occasion with different pins or other jewelry. Many details must be given thought, the correct length of the skirt, the neck line, the effect upon the complexion and the figure. The woman who does a little tall thinking on the subject of sartorial trappings will know intuitively what is best for her. She never makes a mistake. The poor dear of uncertain age must remember that, when she tries to look too young, she will look older than her years. Mrs. Plumpe must remember that black and other dark colors will camouflage her over-curves. Mrs. Skinny should avoid black that makes her look even slimmer.

Edgely Dedicates Bldg. For Community Use

A small group of men and women of the community.

"The first meeting was held in 1915 in John Cunningham's store, which is now Dick's store, by a small group of men who realized the need for a fire company and laid plans for the forming of such a company. The five men at this meeting were 'Bill' Remine, 'Lucky' Allen, 'Gene' Taylor, 'Archie' Wright and 'Jack' Campbell. These men realized the importance of a fire company to a community and that if one was formed it would help the town to grow. A fire company is not just a fire station, but a gathering place for the citizens to talk over plans for the growth and improvement of the community. As a result of the meeting a charter was applied for, which was granted and the first apparatus was an old touring car which the men equipped with fire-fighting equipment. After World War I, they bought a horse-drawn apparatus from the Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation with tanks and ladders. They took this apparatus and dismantled it and placed it on a Ford chassis which they used until 1929, when more modern equipment was secured.

The ground on Grieb avenue where the old firehouse is located was donated by the late Nathan Lane in 1919, who also donated the elder blocks for the building. The contractor who was building the railroad bridge donated the lumber and the men of the community built the first fire house.

"Part of the ground for this new building was bought on June 23, 1926 from the Bloomsdale Estate Company, the remaining piece of ground on July 22, 1946. There were about 13 years of planning for this building which you have here now.

"There is nothing that shows the success of a community more than its fire company and seeing this fire station, Edgely is sure to go ahead and be a successful community.

"This building was erected for a two-fold purpose. First, to properly house the community affairs and the fire apparatus. Secondly, for a different and more noble purpose and that is, it will remain as a monument to those who served their country in time of war.

"Today, we are here to dedicate this building first to the group of men who would not say 'no' when people told them such a building could not be put up with solicitation of funds from the community, and above all we dedicate it as a lasting and impressive monument to the boys and girls, young men and women, who served in the service of their country."

The bronze plaque containing 178 names of boys and girls who were in the service of their country in World War II, was unveiled by a Boy Scout and a Girl Scout. Mr. Kilcoyne told the assembled group: "On this plaque are the names of those who served their country and it is a plaque which we hope will stand forever. On it is the name of John P. Evans. He is an Edgely boy who made the supreme sacrifice, a boy who will never return."

A selection was played by the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion Cadets. After which tribute was paid to the parents of John Evans.

Andrew MacArthur rendered a few vocal selections, after which William L. Stackhouse, president of the Bucks County Firemen's Association was introduced.

Mr. Stackhouse said: "Today in Edgely is a great day for the community and it is a day we have been waiting for, for a good many years. The members of the fire company have talked about having a real building for a fire station some day and today they have realized their dreams. There are 56 fire companies in Bucks county, and I am asked many times where is the largest fire station. Most of the time I have to ponder as to which one is the largest, but after today I will have to say Edgely. It is a building well planned for fire needs and as a community center. I would say it is the largest community hall in the county, and one of which this community can be well proud."

"The fire companies of Bucks county are organized into one large great department so that if a neighboring community needs help in fighting a fire they call and receive it. Thus Bucks county is one of the best equipped counties for fire fighting, and there are many fine fire stations. I have had many fine dealings with the Edgely fire company, and your former chief, Frank L. Kerr, who is now retired."

"It is good to see so many young people here, as they are the ones who will have to take over before many more years. I am sure most of them have their names on the plaque and are justly proud of it. This building is a just and beautiful monument to the ones who served their country."

"It should be the duty of every citizen of the community that when they have visitors from out of town to be sure and show them this building, as it is something to be proud of."

In closing, Mr. Stackhouse said: "The firemen have spent many hours and lots of hard work to make this building possible and your fire station possible. Your fire station and community building is something that still needs to be kept up, and it is your duty to see that it is kept up."

A selection was played by the

Cadets, after which Andrew MacArthur led the group in singing, with Joy Reed doing the piano accompaniment.

Mr. Kilcoyne introduced the following: Frank L. Kerr, honorary fire chief. Mr. Kerr was chief of the company for 30 years. He was the first chief of the company Fred K. Hibbs, present chief; Clifford Peterson, William Ellis and Stanley L. Worthington, committee in charge of dedication; Mrs. Freda Pittman, Mrs. John Newhouse and Mrs. G. Kaechelin, Ladies' Auxiliary committee. Mr. Kilcoyne mentioned two people who, he said, deserve a lot of credit—Ralph Linck and Harold Bahrenburg.

Ralph Linck, president of the fire company, addressing the group, said: "This is the day we have all been waiting for, and it is very gratifying to see so many people here for this occasion. I wish to take this time to thank everyone for their help in making this day possible. It has been through the help of everyone that this building was made possible."

Joy Reed played a number of piano selections, after which another selection was played by the Cadets.

The following officers of the company were presented: Ralph Linck, president; Clifford Peterson, vice-president; Charles Swan, recording secretary; "Andy" Oser, financial secretary; and Thomas Brown, treasurer.

The benediction was given by the Rev. E. Paul Baird, rector of St. Mark's Church, Bristol, after which open house was held and refreshments served to about 1200 people.

Hulmeville Clergyman And Philadelphian Wed Saturday

PHILADELPHIA, June 6—A nuptial ceremony, solemnized in the Berry-Long Methodist Church at 58th & Springfield avenue, at the hour of five o'clock Saturday afternoon, united Miss Aurelia E. Mariani of 5729 N. 13th street, and the Rev. John C. Kulp, pastor of Neshaminy Methodist Church, Hulmeville, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Clarence F. Kulp, of 5816 Springfield avenue.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael G. Mariani, was escorted to the altar by her father, there to take her marriage vows at a ceremony conducted by the Rev. Clarence F. Kulp, father of the bridegroom, who was assisted by the Rev. LeRoy Ewing.

Gowned in a candlelight satin creation which featured beading, the bride wore an orange blossom crown, and carried a white prayer book.

Her quinter of attendants were costumed in yellow and blue. Mrs. M. Michael Mariani, of this city, who served as matron-of-honor, was attired in yellow organdy, and the following bridesmaids in pale blue organdy: Mrs. Robert Seymour, Mrs. Raymond Gottwald, Miss Mary Congreve, and Miss Marian Phillips, all of Philadelphia.

The Rev. Richard H. Adams served the Rev. Mr. Kulp as best man; the group of ushers being inclusive of: Messrs. Donald Ziegler, Addison Gottshalk, Michael Mariani, and John Mariani. The men in the bridal party are all Philadelphians.

"Because," "O Perfect Love," and "I Love You Truly" were sung by Mrs. William W. Ahn, of Norristown. Presiding at the organ console was Mr. Charles F. Bloese, of Yeading.

A gown of rose crepe, lace trimmed, was choice of Mrs. Mariani, mother of the bride, for the ceremony; and selection of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Kulp, was a light blue lace gown.

At the reception, which took place at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, covers were arranged for 125 guests.

Traveling costume of the bride for a honeymoon journey consisted of a tan and brown checked suit, with contrasting accessories. She is a graduate of Olney high school, and the university of Arizona. The Rev. Mr. Kulp is a graduate of Northeast high school, and the University of Pennsylvania, here; and of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.

The couple will reside in the Methodist parsonage at Hulmeville.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Herman H. Doh Pastor First Baptist Church, Andalusia

Our Creator and our God, teach us to be grateful for the life which Thou hast given to us. But above all keep us from being satisfied until we have experienced the more abundant life which is ours through faith in Thy dear Son, the Lord Jesus, and His sacrifice on the cross for us. Amen.

Bride Wears Candle-Light Satin and Chantilly Lace

A gown of candlelight slipper satin, richly trimmed with Chantilly lace, was worn by Miss Elizabeth Eleanor Torano, 1619 Wilson avenue, as she made her way to the altar of St. Ann's R. C. Church on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, there to become the bride of Mr. Jasper diGirolamo, son of Mrs. Domenica diGirolamo, Mansion street. Mr. Frank Torano gave his daughter in marriage.

Chantilly lace was used at the neckline and collar, also to enhance the side drapes, and around the hemline and long train. The gown had long sleeves and a bustle back. The same type of lace was used on the net veil which was fingertip in length; her headpiece was of orange blossoms; and she carried a bouquet of lavender-lipped white orchids.

Nile green was worn by Miss Frances Torano, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor; and orchid by Miss Elizabeth Francescino, Cedar street, a cousin of the bride, who was bridesmaid. Dotted Swiss was used for the floor-length costumes, with ruffles at the hemlines. Short sleeves were puffed, and Peter Pan collars were featured.

The two were dotted Swiss picture hats to match their gowns; silver slippers; and carried bouquets of mixed spring flowers.

The men in the bridal party were Mr. Fred Della, Otter street, cousin of the bride, who served in the capacity of best man; and Mr. Robert Stone, Swain street, usher.

The double ring ceremony was used. Vocal selections, "The Rosary" and "Ave Maria," were by Mr. Joseph Galzerano, Farragut avenue; with Miss Rita Ciotti presiding at the organ console. The Rev. Peter Pinci was the officiating priest.

Mrs. Frank Torano, mother of the bride, was attired in a gray print dress, black hat and accessories; while choice of Mrs. diGirolamo, mother of the bridegroom, was a navy blue dress and accessories. Both wore lavender orchids.

Leaving for a tour of the New England states, the bride was attired in a gold tone dress, natural straw hat with brown trim, white topper, brown accessories, and wore a corsage of lavender orchids. The two will reside in a Mill street apartment.

The bride is a graduate of the Wilfred Academy of Beauty Culture, Philadelphia. Her husband served in the U. S. Navy during World War II.

Members of the bridal party and of the two families were present for a dinner served at Eldorado hall, Trenton, N. J., following the wedding; and a reception took place there in the evening.

KEY TO POLITICS

U. S. politics is in turmoil. The Republicans and Democrats call each other names. The "liberals" scream at the "reactionaries." Labor pulls one way, management and ownership another. The Republican "young Turks" talk one language, and the stalwarts in the G.O.P. quite a different one. The same is true of the Democrats—a "southern Democrat" like Virginia's Senator Byrd couldn't be further apart from northerners like McGrath, or Lucas, or, for that matter, Pennsylvania's Myers, if they belonged to two different parties which had been battling for generations.

These many groups clash over nearly everything in public affairs. On many issues, regular party lines fall apart. There are coalitions and counter-coalitions; deals and counter-deals; plans announced on Monday may be in the waste-basket by sun-up Tuesday.

In this confusion, a great many Americans get lost. Only an expert can keep track of the innumerable cross-currents—and he has to work at it! The casual reader of newspapers, who tries to keep up with what goes on at Washington, hasn't a chance. He winds up ordinarily watching only the fate of a small handful of laws in which he has a direct interest. He judges the national government on the narrow basis of what is done "to" him or "for" him.

The broader picture of what is being done to the future of the nation, of whether America is to be a better or a poorer place for the coming generation to grow up in than for the preceding generations—this is lost in the shuffle.

The most earnest and sincere American man or woman gets very little help when it comes to making a sound judgment on the over-all picture. No matter where he turns, nearly everyone is so excited about minor questions that the bigger ones are overlooked.

If he starts digging in, he becomes hopelessly confused by the fact that few of the national figures seem to "stay put." Two that have much in common bob up on opposite sides of a question—or those who seem to be permanently deadlocked suddenly join hands and start working together.

Beneath all this tangle of politics, there is a simple key. One fundamental issue is being fought out in Washington, on which turns 99 per cent of the political activities there.

This is an easy issue to understand—so easy that a child can get the point at once—yet it is the most profoundly important issue ever raised in the history of this nation.

The question is whether we, as a race, are to live within our income—or beyond it.

Every child who ever received an allowance had to face this question. If you get a quarter on Monday, and blow it in on lollipops—then you're broke for the next six days. But if you save a dime of the allowance, then next week you have 35 cents in your possession instead of only a quarter. It's as simple as that.

A given number of people, with a given number of tools, and a given amount of raw materials, and a given market, can earn no more than a certain amount of money.

There is no ceiling on what America could be made to produce in the future, by careful growth and expansion; but there is a very definite ceiling on what it can produce in any period of years in the present.

Ninety-nine per cent of the quarrels at Washington are between those who want the government to spend money faster than it is earned—and those who want spending held down to what we are sure we can afford.

Give three children an allowance—and what happens? One will spend it recklessly—and then try to borrow more. A second will portion it out and spend it according to plan. The third will spend a little less than he gets, and put the balance aside to be sure to have something extra on hand in the future.

Of the three, no one has trouble in figuring which is the one most apt to be happy and successful throughout his life. The man who lives inside his income may lose out occasionally on small luxuries—but mostly he makes up for this with big luxuries later in life.

Of the other two, one is always "broke," and the other never more than one jump ahead of being broke.

In the simple finances of a child and his allowances, this is easy to see.

But a government's finances follow the same law.

A government can run on a basis of "spend as we earn." For more than a century and a half, that was basic policy in the American nation. There was a constantly rising standard of living for the American people—but beneath it was a constantly spreading foundation of economic strength.

There are thousands of those in Washington and elsewhere who believe that the government ought to go back at once to a "spend as we earn" basis. They argue simply that the government and the American people will go bankrupt unless this is done.

Because they want to return to a policy that was so wise it never should have been abandoned, they are called "reactionaries." They are accused of wanting to "turn the clock back," of trying to carry the nation "back to the horse-and-buggy days."

Those who say these things are persons who believe a way has been found for the U. S. government to spend more than the American people earn for it to spend.

This sounds impossible. How can anyone, government or individual, spend more than there is to spend?

TALBOTS AWAIT SENTENCE AFTER WAIVING DEFENSE TO CHARGES THAT THEY DEFRAUDED ON INCOME TAXES

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA, June 7—A father and his son today awaited sentence after they waived defense to charges they defrauded the government of $379,975 in income taxes in 1943 and 1944.

Joseph S. Talbot, 57, and his son, George, 31, operated the now-closed Talbot Worsteds Mills Co. in Philadelphia during the war.

Arraigned before Federal Judge J. Cullen Ganey, the Talbots, now residents of Arizona, pleaded "no defense" to the charges.

Federal agents told Judge Ganey after the Talbots waived defense that the former Bristol wool manufacturers derived most of a combined income of $442,597 from alleged blackmarket operations.

Talbot admitted on the witness stand that he engaged in "illegal operations" in the wool market, but claimed his profits amounted to about $90,000.

The rest of the "under-the-table" payments, he claimed, went to a Boston wool dealer to whom he was forced to pay illegal over-the-ceiling prices in order to get merchandise.

Seven companies controlled by the Talbots have gone out of business, the court was told.

Judge Ganey deferred sentence until June 25 to permit Federal authorities to probe thoroughly into the backgrounds of the Talbots.

The elder Talbot admitted the "blackmarket" operations, but said he was "forced" into them because foreign wool, which he dealt in, was not available "unless you paid a premium for it."

He said these "premiums" ranged from 25 to 40 cents a pound which he had to pay to the Boston wool broker who was his chief source of supply for foreign wool.

The Talbots were indicted September 8 last, each separately on their own income taxes for the two years, and jointly, for filing the company's alleged fraudulent return for 1943. The elder Talbot was president of this company, and the son, secretary.

The company's report gave its

PENNSBURY BOARD SEEKS MORE SPACE

Schools Are Crowded and More Room Is Needed

SIX TEACHERS RESIGN

YARDLEY, June 7—To procure additional classroom space a four-member committee has been named by the Pennsbury Joint School Board.

The committee was appointed following a report by Medill Bair, supervising principal of Pennsbury schools, and Mrs. Cora Holeslaw, principal of the Mafeld building, who told members of the board that they had considered the Mafeld Community House and the Yardley Methodist Sunday School as possible classroom sites.

The Sunday school rooms, with additional lighting and toilet fixtures and school equipment, could accommodate about 60 students. They added that, inasmuch as the church cannot accept rent for use of the rooms, a donation should be made to replace the rental fee.

The resignations of six teachers were accepted by the board. They are: Miss Alice Lynch, Miss Herman, Mrs. Nelson, Mrs. Strikhart, Mrs. Elmyra S. Carmichael and H. Edmond Smith. Smith, who has been acting as administrative assistant to Bair, has resigned to accept the post of supervising principal at High Bridge, N. J.

Board members also approved the election of five new teachers for the coming year: Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. H. Hubbard, Miss Ruth M. Roselle, Harry H. Dubin and Miss Karen Doyle.

A letter from the Yardley Water & Power Co. has been received by the joint board notifying its members that the company will not be responsible for pupils of the Yardley building using property at the rear of its power plant for a playground.

If children continue to use the land, which adjoins the school, the school board will be responsible for accidents, the letter added.

The expense of grading and leveling off the power company property in order to make it suitable for a playground would be approximately $300, according to the board.

Forrest C. Jones, joint board chairman, presided at the meeting.

WILL NOT SUBMIT SCHOOL BOND PLAN AT THE PRIMARY

Bristol Board Rescinds Its Action Recently Taken

STATE ACT APPROVED

Teachers' Association Asks Interpretation of Board's Action Under New Law

As the State School Authority Act has been declared constitutional, the Bristol School Board has rescinded its previous action and will not submit to the voters at the primary election the question of a bond issue for the proposed new school building. This action was decided upon at a meeting which did not adjourn until 1:20 this morning. The State Act provides means of financing school buildings.

The Board voted to enter into a contract with J. M. Blew & Son, architects, to proceed with new plans for a school building on the new site at Beaver street and Route 13. The previous contract with Mr. Blew called for plans for the site which the Board then owned at Radcliffe street and Green Lane. This agreement has been terminated.

A letter from the Bristol Teachers Association was received asking for the Board's interpretation of its recent action on salaries for 1949-1950, in view of the legislation recently passed by the State Legislature. The reply of the Board is that the maximum salaries then considered were the maximums which existed at that time.

Robert C. Ruehl, chairman of property committee, stated the committee had visited the new school site and cited some repairs needed to the property. It was decided to raise the rent for the house to $55 and the barn to $50 per month.

Upon motion of John Daugherty Harry McClister was named athletic director and Jerry Bloom assistant athletic director and Mr. Beck to handle the business records of the athletic activities. This action was taken to provide a more co-ordinated athletic effort in the schools. John Paxlone, chairman of supply committee, informed the Board that orders have been placed for janitors' supplies.

The Board appointed William L. Goldfarb, Bristol foot specialist, for a period of one year to examine the feet of the children. He will serve without compensation.

Miss Patton was named by the Board to have full charge of the cafeteria next term. This will afford students an opportunity to gain experience in preparation of platters and cafeteria management.

Permission was given to Terchon Post to stage marble tournaments on the Bath street, Washington street, and Wood street, school grounds.

The Board rejected the act to ex-

BACCALAUREATE IS DELIVERED BY REV. PAUL GLEICHMAN

"What Doth the Lord Require of Thee?" is Basis For His Message

Service Attended by Relatives and Friends of Graduates, Sunday

"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" This was the basis for the baccalaureate sermon delivered by the Rev. Paul Gleichman, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, before members of the 1949 class, Bristol high school, and their families and friends, yesterday. The service took place in the high school auditorium.

Music was directed by Charles H. Quigley and G. Arthur Hornberger, special numbers being by the high school choir.

The Rev. Mr. Gleichman's sermon follows:

To the members of the graduating class, their families and friends; and to the members of the faculty and school board, I express my appreciation of the privilege of delivering the baccalaureate sermon. This is an occasion which I shall treasure in my ministry in Bristol.

To the graduates, I extend my sincere congratulations on this, the successful completion of your high school work. I hope that your commencement will become a threshold over which you cross into greater and even more significant attainment.

As the basis of our thinking together this afternoon I have chosen an Old Testament passage in the words of the prophet Micah, the sixth chapter, the eighth verse: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Across this text we may write the subject, "The Divine Requirement," for the question which the prophet raises and answers is essentially what God requires of you and me.

What shall I do? What shall I become? What requirements must I meet? What will be expected of me as I advance now beyond high school to larger responsibilities? These are questions to be faced and answered; questions which concern your future; and, questions which have to do with your higher education and your chosen career. These are important and, usually, difficult questions.

As you seek the answers to these questions, may I remind you today—as I am sure you have been reminded many times—there is one question on which all the others depend, the one question which must be answered first: "What doth the Lord require of thee?"

TIME TO GET MOVING

Two headlines appear on the same page of a newspaper. Each is perfectly clear and understandable. But together they reflect a situation that makes no sense whatever. One reads: "Hoover Reforms Are Facing Delay." The other: "U. S. Spending Seen Likely to Rise."

The story under the second heading quotes two unidentified "members of President Truman's fiscal family." They say that despite the talk of economy the government will spend more money in the next fiscal year than in this one, and still more in the 1951 fiscal year.

They also say there will be deficits in both years unless Congress increases taxes on a scale few now expect.

This "realistic appraisal" of the outlook should be taken seriously. It will be a shock, and one likely to have painful effects, if the government cannot balance its budget—to say nothing of cutting down the huge public debt—at a time of high economic activity and general prosperity. A return to deficit financing ought to be avoided like the plague.

But the first dispatch implies clearly that Congress is not as worried about this problem as it should be. It reports dwindling hopes of effecting any major part of the reforms advocated by the Hoover Commission "before 1950 at the earliest."

The reason is that the Senate and House reorganization bills are tied up in conference, the differences are wide, and a compromise is unlikely to be reached in time for the President to get any plans approved before adjournment.

Yet the economies that could result from streamlining the government are estimated at "up to $3,000,000,000 a year." If they could be effected soon, the government's financial problem would be less acute. Congressional leaders had better take a quick look at those impending deficits—and then get fast action on the reorganization bill.

THEY HATE US

Attacks by Bolivian natives on American engineers at the tin mines is dramatic proof that agitators are on the loose in South America. By what reasoning, if any, they concluded attacking the engineers would better their lot is not clear.

Probably the Bolivian natives are Communists today, and would convert the country into a Communist regime if they had the strength. Such a regime would give them less than they have today, but they don't know it. Certainly they have more to gain from the efforts of American engineers than from those of Communist agitators.

The fabulous Simon Patino, nabob of tin, became one of the richest men in the world. In the process he paid out billions in wages to people who had none before. But all the natives can see is that Patino became rich, and they regard us as representatives of an unequal system.

Key To Politics

But it can be done. If you borrow money, and use it to go on a spree, you are spending more than you had to spend. If you keep on signing checks after your bank account is exhausted, you are spending more than you own—till they catch up with you.

Uncle Sam has already spent a great deal more than he owned. We have a national debt of a quarter of a trillion dollars. It has been spent over the past sixteen years. The bills have been passed along, through the bonds, to future generations.

Uncle Sam spent this incredibly vast sum years ago. Yet no one in this generation earned it. It hasn't been earned yet. When it is, this money will belong to the future generations who do earn it. Yet it already has been spent! That's one way to spend more than the government has to spend!

There are many other ways. Inflation is one of them. So is this business of letting the government underwrite vast spending programs for which the cash is not in sight.

Mainly, of course this money is being spent for things people want. That's why it's being spent—to buy things people want badly enough to trade their votes for. This involves hiding from the people, the fact, that they are having to pay three or four times over for these "free gifts," because they are being made through the government—paying for them once in taxes, again in high prices, again in loss of buying value of investments, and a fourth time, probably, in limited job possibilities for the future.

The New Deal, Square Deal, Socialism, Communism, Welfare state, etc., etc., are all versions of a very simple piece of sales-talk; first, that "the government can do it better"; and second, "it's possible for everyone to be prosperous and secure on printing-press money."

Some Americans see the fallacies in this sales-talk; others don't. Nearly every shade of political opinion in this nation today can be analyzed on its reaction to this simple subject.

There are those of both major parties who are so alarmed at the threat of impending bankruptcy they demand immediate drastic retrenchment of government spending to keep us solvent.

There are those who alarmed over the possibility, but think we could take a middle course; spend less, but keep on spending.

There are those who privately admit "it is only a question of time" till we go bankrupt, and even that "it's too late to turn around"—but are willing to ride with the tide and take advantage of the supposed political popularity of spending meanwhile.

There are those who believe that the end justifies the means—that the so-called "social benefits" are so valuable they are worth grabbing even though they involve national bankruptcy.

And no doubt there are those who honestly think that "this time" we can actually control inflation, and keep the merry-go-round spinning for years to come; their main argument is that "We haven't gone bankrupt" yet!

The question to ask about any American "leader" who stands up to demand this or that change in national policy is:

"What is his attitude on the broader subject of his proposal's effect on the future solvency of this nation?"

For the safety of this generation, and for the sake of America's children yet unborn, no spending program ever should be authorized by the United States government until it has been established beyond question that it can be afforded without endangering the nation's economic future.

LEGALIZED SECRECY

After a few minor differences in the thinking of the House and Senate have been ironed out, a bill broadening the powers of the Central Intelligence Agency will go to President Truman. It makes legally unaccountable to Congress several processes which, it is evident, members of both branches view with alarm.

As passed by a voice vote in the Senate, the bill offers special benefits to American spies and their informers, and permits the CIA to shroud in secrecy its financial practices and the names and activities of its agents. The agency is authorized to grant asylum annually to a maximum of 100 persons of foreign extraction whose services have been of value to this country in the past—or still are—and whose presence in their homelands places them in jeopardy.

Objections to the bill in the Senate took much the same tack as those currently being leveled against the conduct of the Atomic Energy Commission. Several Senators could not see their way clear to granting a "blank check" to the agency. Senator Johnson said he feared that granting blanket authority without full explanation would create a "military gestapo" within the government. Senator Tydings, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, sought to mollify jittery Senators by promising that the list of agents to be admitted will be subject to review.

The Senators' reluctance to go along with the bill on the say-so of someone also is entirely understandable. As in the case of the AEC, the lawmakers are unwilling to grant broad, sweeping authority without the assurance that suitable checks and balances have been provided.

DECADE IN AVIATION

Ten years is a long period in the history of aviation. The other day another anniversary could have been observed in the industry, but the date passed almost unnoticed. No ceremony marked the departure of a tenth anniversary mail flight from LaGuardia Field, New York.

Ten years ago, with all the pomp and ceremony that belittled the occasion, the first trans-Atlantic mail flight left Port Washington, N. Y. In the plane which Capt. Arthur E. LaPorte guided off the field was 1,804 pounds of mail.

Twenty-six hours and 54 minutes later the last mailbags were unloaded in Lisbon, and another chapter in the history of American aeronautics was written.

Now the service has become routine. On the tenth anniversary crossing the mail was stowed away, quickly and efficiently, in a big liner, which also carried a complement of passengers, none of whom apparently was aware he was taking part in what could have been an anniversary event. Furthermore, the crossing was made in 14 hours.

What once was adventure in aviation is now just an everyday chore.

On Thursday night the steamer was torn away from her dock by the up-river ice which came down suddenly with the freshet, and was carried out in the stream where she still lays pinned in the grasp of the Ice King.

A novel way of transmitting power without the aid of shafting is to be seen at the world's mills of William H. Grundy & Co. Power is transmitted by an endless rope, 350 feet long, from the engine room in the main building across the mill yard to a room in which have been installed a number of spinning machines. The distance is 153 feet. Each rope will carry over 50 horsepower.

At the regular meeting of Fidelity Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held last Thursday evening, the following officers were elected, and will be installed this evening: Councilor, George Fenton; vice councilor, Moses Louder; assistant recording secretary, Leonard Schrock; conductor, John Chambers, Jr.; warden William Donnell; inside sentinel, Harry Sheppard; trustee, George Schrock; chaplain, Doron Green.

On Tuesday Judge Yerkes appointed the Side-path Commissioners for Bucks County. They were: Amos Briggs, of Tullytown, for one year; William C. Pierce, of Bristol, for two years; and Charles R. Nightingale, of Doylestown, for three years. Messrs. Pierce and Briggs were recommended by the Wheelmen's Road Association, of Bristol.

The new Board of County Poor Directors organized for the year by electing William Baum, the new member, president; and Howard Y. Rich, treasurer; Edward G. Case was re-appointed clerk; Henry O. Harris, solicitor; Dr. Harvey Kratz, physician; and Edwin F. Bunting and wife, steward and matron. The inmates of the institution number 158.

At the annual meeting of the male members of the Methodist Church held last Friday evening, the following trustees were elected: For three years — Charles M. Foster, Doron Green and J. Wesley Wright; for two years — William Allen.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Crisis Is Close

Washington, June 6.
THE concededly sick condition of the nation's finances is being taken more seriously now by more members of Congress than ever before. Republicans as well as Democrats agree that this is a reflection of the feeling of many hundreds of thousands of citizens, hard pressed for money to pay taxes and still maintain a reasonable standard of living for their families. Many have reached the point where the increasing penalties and perils of national debts and deficits have become a nightmare.

CERTAINLY, it has taken them a long time to get to that point. For a good many years the dangers of vast governmental expansion and uncontrolled expenditures have been stressed in vain. Even those who admitted the unsoundness of the spending policy and regarded the three-thumbed theory of the self-styled "liberal economists" that the size of the national debt does not matter because "we owe it to ourselves" as too silly to deny—even these were too apathetic to be actively antagonistic. On the other hand, while the Treasury billions continue to pour out, great hordes of voters directly profit either by getting on the Federal pay roll or receiving some form of personal bounty, subsidy or date.

FOR four elections the "tax, tax, spend, spend, elect, elect" formula of the late Mr. Hopkins, which expressed with complete accuracy the whole New Deal political philosophy, has prevailed. Perhaps it will prevail again, but there is in Congress today a concern about economy and an alarm about waste that has not existed since 1933, when the Treasury floodgates were flung open and a large part of the population ran in to get theirs. In less than a month the fiscal year of 1949 will close and fiscal 1950 begin. There is reason to believe that the figures then made public will shock all save the most dizzy optimists and callous politicians.

LAST January Mr. Truman presented a voluminous but unintelligible budget in which he forecast for fiscal 1950 a deficit of $900,000,000. The Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation points out that, accepting the President's estimate of $41,500,000,000 for expenditures, he has underestimated the deficit by $2,160,000,000 which means a deficit of $2,000,000,000. But Senator Byrd and others insist the President's spending estimate for 1950 is far too low. They say appropriations already authorized justify putting the figure at $41,500,000,000. In other words, the 1950 deficit cannot be less than $2,500,000,000 and easily may run to $3,000,000,000. Republican Senator Wherry a few days ago estimated it at $11,000,000,000. The facts seem to bear the Byrd figure out. If and when they are substantiated, the crisis confronting the country will be one no citizen can afford to blink.

Clearly, something then will have to be done or down the drain we go. We will have arrived at that inevitable end of the road so long and futilely talked about. Obviously there are only three possible courses of action: spend vastly less; tax vastly more; or take the foot off the brakes.

DESPITE passage by the House of a new veterans' pension bill sentiment for economy appears rapidly growing. Recent newspaper polls in various states are highly significant. There is a real prospect that the five per cent cut all down the line will be made. But that would total only 1½ billion, which is a long way from enough. The Hoover Commission has shown how 3 billion can be annually saved but the power of the Federal jobholders is such that few believe Congress has the guts to go full distance on that. Clearly, you can't raise $5,000,000,000 more in taxes without further depressing business and drying up revenue. Economy is the only answer. Faced with the stark prospect of a bankrupt nation, the only possible way to avert disaster is to push aside all new expensive experiments, completely cut out waste and recover our financial equilibrium. Upon that hinges not only our own salvation but the civilizations abroad which we are so desperately trying to prop.

IT is interesting to note that while Mr. Truman is alarmed over the prospect of a big deficit and still publicly anyhow — favors raising four billions in new taxes his zeal for economy is not great. So far he has opposed every cutting proposal. Nor has he really put his weight behind the Hoover proposals. It is even more interesting to note the attitude of the Americans for Democratic Action and their allied labor bosses. These denounce the President's partial retreat from the more fantastically expensive part of his program as a "betrayal" of the people. But they do more than that. Recently a Harvard economist, representing the ADA, appeared before a Senate committee urging the Administration's extremely costly compulsory health — insurance bill. He rather stunned some senators by declaring that governments cannot afford to economize, and family heads who save instead of spending are "anti-social."

THERE is no available information as to how he behaves with his own money but certainly Senator Hubert Humphrey (sometimes called "Lippy"), who is head of the ADA, does not intend if he can help it that Uncle Sam shall go "anti-social" in this way. In five months he has personally sponsored bills totaling more than 23 billions of dollars of taxpayers' money. He is probably pretty proud of himself. Anyhow, it's a great thought that the more we spend and the more we owe and the deeper the deficit and the higher the debt the better off everybody is. Those who believe that the deeper the deficit and the higher the number — may have a lot of fun — until the dam bursts.

And Micah answers, We should practice justice, love mercy, and walk humbly with our God. The simplicity of that answer is appealing. The breadth of that answer is satisfying, for it sums up our duty to both God and man, even as Jesus once expressed it: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God . . . and thy neighbor as thyself."

We are perfectly aware this day of the various churches and creeds and faiths represented in this congregation. In the words of Micah, however, we find a common point of meeting. Here is a statement of the "divine requirement" with which we all can agree: We should practice justice, and love mercy, and walk humbly with our God.

Too often "justice" is reserved for our courts of law. We are prone to think of justice in terms of crime and punishment, and legal processes where the law must take its course. But, there is a justice of human relationships which must operate not only in the court, but on the level of our everyday life, if we are to be fair and honest and decent in our treatment of our fellow-men.

The problem of race relations; the conflicts of labor and management; and the threats to religious liberty — these are areas where justice is simply clamoring for expression. You will not be spared these problems. You must be prepared, rather, to face these problems with a high sense of justice; to realize, in terms of the "golden rule," that "we should do unto others even as we would have them do unto us," and refrain from doing to others what we would not have them do to us. "Doing justly" means that I must move over, as it were, and make room in this world for my brother, even though he be of another race or another creed. "Doing justly" means that I must think of my responsibilities as well as my rights, and eight hours of honest labor as well as eight hours of pay.

Still, justice is not the highest law by which we live. Do justly — Yes! but love mercy and kindness! "Our earthly power doth then show likest God's when mercy seasons justice."

One of the simplest and yet most eloquent phrases in the whole New Testament describes Jesus of Nazareth as one who "went about doing good." Though a more just man never walked the face of the earth, Jesus of Nazareth was kind, and compassionate, and merciful. The recent post-war years have

CLOTHES may not make the man, but they certainly have plenty to do with making that woman in the looking glass appear attractive or otherwise. Some girls fancy that if they had plenty of money they could be ladies of fashion. It is not as simple as that. Smart attire is the result of a combination of gifts — good taste, an appreciation of beautiful colors and graceful lines, an understanding of suitability. One's type must be taken into consideration.

It will not do to have fixed ideas. The woman who scorns new offerings looks pretty much the same year after year. She is usually given to the practice of selecting drab colors that accent her drab personality. Let an expert dressmaker take her in hand and she'll pop off ten years, come out fresh and blooming.

Flattering Colors

Clothes should look as if they belong, as if there is a friendly bond between them and the wearer. This pleasant state of affairs will not exist if the frock is too large or too snug, if it isn't one's age, if the colors are not flattering.

The right frock will give a woman confidence; the wrong one will bring on an inferiority feeling. That is why one should not make a hasty selection.

The right accessories are just as important as the dress itself. A plain basic dress can be changed for each occasion with different pins or other jewelry.

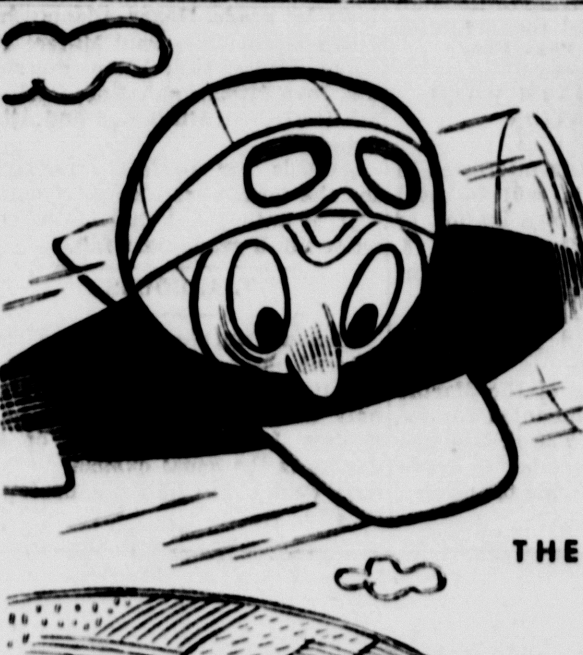

Many details must be given thought, the correct length of the skirt, the neck line, the effect upon the complexion and the figure. The woman who does a little tall thinking on the subject of sartorial trappings will know intuitively what is best for her. She never makes a mistake.

The poor dear of uncertain age must remember that, when she tries to look too young, she will look older than her years.

Mrs. Plumpe must remember that black and other dark colors will camouflage her over-curves. Mrs. Skinny should avoid black that makes her look even slimmer.

placed a severe strain upon the kindness and justice of our nation, and, incidentally, have illustrated how justice and mercy can operate side by side. Justice decreed that the war criminals be tried and sentenced, but kindness demanded that the innocent victims of war be fed, clothed, and sheltered. Thus, at one and the same time, we have had the trials at Nuremberg of the war criminals; and, in generosity and kindness toward the suffering, the unnumbered charities of World Relief.

The world is full of bitterness and hatred and cruelty. Yet there is still ample room and abundant need for kindness and mercy. Life is short. We pass this way but once. It is not enough, as someone has said, that we be content with simply "going about." We must seek to go about "doing good," to deal gently and kindly with all men and especially, with those weaker and less fortunate than ourselves.

To justice we add mercy; and to these, humility: "walk humbly with thy God."

Victor Hugo has said: "Certain thoughts are prayers. There are moments when, whatever be the attitude of the body, the soul is on its knees."

And what he has said of prayer is true, also, of humility. A pious remark or a bowed head are not signs necessarily, of an humble walk with God. Humility is rather an attitude of mind and a freedom from pride and snobbery. It is, even as Kipling has written, the ability to walk with kings, yet not lose the common touch.

Astronomy has discovered an "expanding universe," has probed the skies with the telescope and found new mystery and wonder in the world above us. But, we do not boast of this knowledge. Instead, we are humbled by our ignorance, and, despite the passage of the centuries, still thrill to the words of the psalmist: "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers; the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained: what is man that Thou art mindful of him?"

Turn again to Jesus of Nazareth! Master, teacher, leader of men; ordained to greatness, given a name above every name. He, nevertheless, was truly humble, and on the night in which He was betrayed He stooped and washed the feet of His disciples. He was among men as One Who served, who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister; and, Who came preaching, in word and deed: "everyone that ex-alteth himself shall be abased, but he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Once again I assure you of our prayers and good wishes on this occasion, and thoughts well expressed in the words of Clara Elizabeth Bartley:

I wish you joy:
Not that which comes
From life without a care—
A deeper joy which wells
From having learned to meet
Both joy and sorrow gallantly.

I wish you health of mind and heart
From living much in God's great
out-of-doors:
The peace of quiet streams;
The gladness of the wind among the trees,
And birds at dawn;
The glory of the sunset.

I wish you usefulness in some real task
Worth while to human welfare,
And in it joy of sacrifice
For those who call you friend."

union is one of the earliest and plants, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

fire apparatus. Secondly, for a different and more noble purpose and that is, it will remain as a monument to those who served their country in time of war.

"Today, we are here to dedicate this building first to the group of men who would not say 'no' when people told them such a building could not be put up with solicitation of funds from the community, and above all we dedicate it as a lasting and impressive monument to the boys and girls, young men and women, who served in the service of their country."

The bronze plaque containing 178 names of boys and girls who were in the service of their country in World War II, was unveiled by a Boy Scout and a Girl Scout. Mr. Kilcoyne told the assembled group: "On this plaque are the names of those who served their country and it is a plaque which we hope will stand forever. On it is the name of John F. Evans. He is an Edgely boy who made the supreme sacrifice, a boy who will never return."

A selection was played by the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 282, American Legion Cadets. After which tribute was paid to the parents of John Evans.

Andrew MacArthur rendered a few vocal selections, after which William L. Stackhouse, president of the Bucks County Firemen's Association was introduced.

Mr. Stackhouse said: "Today in Edgely is a great day for the community and it is a day we have been waiting for, for a good many years. The members of the fire company have talked about having a real building for a fire station some day and today they have realized their dreams. There are 56 fire companies in Bucks county, and I am sure many times where is the largest fire station. Most of the time I have to ponder as to which one is the largest, but after today I will have to say Edgely. It is a building well planned for fire needs and as a community center. I would say it is the largest community hall in the county, and one of which this community can be well proud."

"The fire companies of Bucks county are organized into one large great department so that if a neighboring community needs help in fighting a fire they call and receive it. Thus Bucks county is one of the best equipped counties for fire fighting, and there are many fine fire stations. I have had many fine dealings with the Edgely fire company, and your former chief, Frank L. Kerr, who is now retired."

"It is good to see so many young people here, as they are the ones who will have to take over before many more years. I am sure most of them have their names on the plaque and are justly proud of it. This building is a just and beautiful monument to the ones who served their country."

"It should be the duty of every citizen of the community that when they have visitors from out of town to be sure and show them this building, as it is something to be proud of."

In closing, Mr. Stackhouse said: "The firemen have spent many hours and lots of hard work to make this building possible and your fire station possible. Your fire station and community building is something that still needs to be kept up, and it is your duty to see that it is kept up."

A selection was played by the

Cadets, after which Andrew MacArthur led the group in singing, with Joy Reed doing the piano accompaniment.

Mr. Kilcoyne introduced the following: Frank L. Kerr, honorary fire chief. Mr. Kerr was chief of the company for 30 years. He was the first chief of the company. Fred K. Hibbs, present chief; Clifford Peterson, William Ellis and Stanley L. Worthington, committee in charge of dedication; Mrs. Freda Pittman, Mrs. John Newhouse and Mrs. G. Kaechelin, Ladies' Auxiliary committee. Mr. Kilcoyne mentioned two people who, he said, deserve a lot of credit—Ralph Linck and Harold Bahrenburg.

Ralph Linck, president of the fire company, addressing the group, said: "This is the day we have all been waiting for, and it is very gratifying to see so many people here for this occasion. I wish to take this time to thank everyone for their help in making this day possible. It has been through the help of everyone that this building was made possible."

Joy Reed played a number of piano selections, after which another selection was played by the Cadets.

The following officers of the company were presented: Ralph Linck, president; Clifford Peterson, vice-president; Charles Swan, recording secretary; "Andy" Oser, financial secretary; and Thomas Brown, treasurer.

The benediction was given by the Rev. E. Paul Baird, rector of St. Mark's Church, Bristol, after which open house was held and refreshments served to about 1200 people.

Two From This Area To Graduate at George School

GEORGE SCHOOL, June 6—Bruce W. Kyte, R. D. 2, Bristol, and Fred W. Grupp, Jr., of Edgington, are among the 128 seniors scheduled to graduate from George School next Monday, June 13, in the 55th commencement ceremonies.

The church was decorated with seasonal flowers.

The bride wore a floor-length dress of heavenly blue tone, with bodice of Chantilly lace, and full-cut skirt of chiffon. Her matching cartwheel type of hat of chiffon had ruffling of Chantilly lace. She wore elbow length gloves in matching blue lace tied at the wrists with touches of blue velvet; and carried white orchids on a white prayer book. Blue satin slippers completed her costume.

Mrs. George Heaton, Bath street, who served as matron of honor for her sister, was attired in a gown of shell pink nylon marquisette, applied in Chantilly lace. It was patterned with a soft rolled collar, fitted bodice, and full cut skirt. Her hat was old-fashioned in type, and of pink marquisette, with blue roses set in the frame, this being tied with chiffon veiling. Her matching Chantilly lace gloves were elbow length; and she wore white kid slippers. An old-fashioned bouquet was carried by the attendant.

Other members of the bridal party were: Mr. Dominick Battaglio, of Brooklyn, N. Y., best man; Messrs. Harry Carter, William Richardson and George Heaton, of Bristol, ushers.

To her attendant, the bride presented a gold bracelet. Mr. Altman gave the best man a silver cigarette lighter; and the ushers tie clasps.

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heaton was attended by 75 guests. The newlyweds are spending a week at Bushkill Falls. Travelling costume of the bride consisted of a corded brown and white shawl suit; a dacha and brown veiled hat, brown kid slippers and purse, white gloves, and a corsage of white orchids. The two will occupy an apartment on Staten Island.

Mrs. Altman is a graduate of Bristol high school, and of the Episcopal School of Nursing, Philadelphia. She is on the staff of Harbor General Hospital, Staten Island. The bride-groom, a Brooklyn high school graduate, served for three years in the U. S. Army.

Guests from Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburgh, parts of New Jersey, also from this area attended the wedding.

Hulmeville Clergyman And Philadelphian Wed Saturday

PHILADELPHIA, June 6—A nuptial ceremony, solemnized in the Berry-Long Methodist Church at 58th & Springfield avenue, at the hour of five o'clock Saturday afternoon, united Miss Aurelia E. Marjan of 5729 N. 13th street, and the Rev. John C. Kulp, pastor of Neshaminy Methodist Church, Hulmeville, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Clarence F. Kulp, of 5816 Springfield avenue.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael G. Marjan, was escorted to the altar by her father, there to take her marriage vows at a ceremony conducted by the Rev. Clarence F. Kulp, father of the bride-groom, who was assisted by the Rev. LeRoy Ewing.

Gowned in a candlelight satin creation which featured beading, the bride wore an orange blossom crown, and carried a white prayer book.

Her quintet of attendants were costumed in yellow and blue. Mrs. M. Michael Marjan, of this city, who served as matron-of-honor, was attired in yellow organdy, and the following bridesmaids in pale blue organdy: Mrs. Robert Seymour, Mrs. Raymond Gotwals, Miss Mary Congreve, and Miss Marian Phillips, all of Philadelphia.

The Rev. Richard H. Adams served the Rev. Mr. Kulp as best man; the group of ushers being inclusive of Messrs. Donald Ziegler, Addison Gottshalk, Michael Marjan, and John Marjan. The men in the bridal party are all Philadelphians.

"Because," "O Perfect Love," and "I Love You Truly" were sung by Mrs. William W. Ahn, of Norristown. Presiding at the organ console was Mr. Charles F. Blase, of Yeadon.

A gown of rose crepe, lace trimmed, was choice of Mrs. Marjan, mother of the bride, for the ceremony; and selection of the bride-groom's mother, Mrs. Kulp, was a light blue lace gown.

At the reception, which took place at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, covers were arranged for 125 guests.

Travelling costume of the bride for a honeymoon journey consisted of a tan and brown checked suit, with contrasting accessories. She is a graduate of Olney high school, and the university of Arizona. The Rev. Mr. Kulp is a graduate of Northeast high school, and the University of Pennsylvania, here; and of Drew Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J.

The couple will reside in the Methodist parsonage at Hulmeville.

Bride Wears Candle-Light Satin and Chantilly Lace

A gown of candlelight slipper satin, richly trimmed with Chantilly lace, was worn by Miss Elizabeth Eleanor Torano, 1619 Wilson avenue, as she made her way to the altar of St. Ann's R. C. Church on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, there to become the bride of Mr. Jasper diGirolamo, son of Mrs. Domenica diGirolamo, Mansion street. Mr. Frank Torano gave his daughter in marriage.

Chantilly lace was used at the neckline and collar, also to enhance the side drapes, and around the hemline and long train. The gown had long sleeves and a bustle back. The same type of lace was used on the net veil which was fingertip in length; her headpiece was of orange blossoms; and she carried a bouquet of lavender-tipped white orchids.

Nile green was worn by Miss Frances Torano, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor; and orchid by Miss Elizabeth Francescino, Cedar street, a cousin of the bride, who was bridesmaid. Dotted Swiss was used for the floor-length costumes, with ruffles at the hemlines. Short sleeves were puffed, and Peter Pan collars were featured.

JUST UNLUCKY

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS)—Two teenagers at Portland fled a 41-passenger bus from a parking lot for a joyride. Their escapade ended abruptly when they collided with the car owned by—of all people—a county probation officer.

After graduation

comes opportunity!

THE approach of Commencement Day 1949 brings many high school seniors face to face with a big question—what next? There's one big opportunity to which every high school graduate should give serious consideration. This is the career offered you in today's Regular Army.

Few openings in private enterprise offer you the leadership training, the educational advantages, the exciting travel and adventure, the supervised sports and recreation programs and the clean, wholesome, active life that can be yours with an Army enlistment.

Few openings offer you such comradeship with America's finest young men—for today—only the best are acceptable for service in the United States Army.

To win a place in today's Regular Army you must pass physical examinations that are tougher—mental examinations more difficult—than ever before. And with these more rigid requirements you will face keener all-round competition for assignment to the more than 500 courses offered at Army technical and specialty schools.

The rewards are also greater—opportunity for advancement is limited only by your ability and initiative. Many of today's general officers began their careers as Privates. Some of today's Privates may be our future Generals!

Appointments to Officer's Candidate Schools and to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point are available to those who can make the grade. In what other field can you aspire so high?

You owe it to yourself to get all the facts. See the friendly recruiting officer at your local U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station today. He will be happy to give you full details without any obligation to you.
